Title: A SPLIT HAZARD - REMIXES

Artist: Downrocks Vs Split DJ

Style: Electro Funk

Feats: -

Last Downrocks work, Beathazard (BHAZ02), was opened with a collaboration from Split DJ, old late 80's partner that was always an Electro Funk faithful believer. "A Split Hazard", song inspired by the purest 85 Hip Hop style, remained as one of the self production top favourites of this artist, justifying this sequel with new versions.

"A Split Hazard - Extended" was looking for that vintage sensation listeners use to had when they find out new elements on the extended version. A new piece of vocoder lyrics, few more scratch breaks, new melodies... Split remade the drum programming and everything was mixed again.

Likewise, the CLUB version on the B side, constructed in a more current-conventional way and BPM's raised, repays the work of these two Bboys, adding an extra track with the vocoder acapellas (like it comes being usual in the policy of this label) and some small well designed pieces for scratchers.

Its a must to highlight the work of the engineer DJ Soyez (De Pearls Studio) on the mastering field, where the digital world flows with the best sonic elements of the analog machinery.
